ACCCO provides flexibility to allow students to complete their course in a variety of different modes. This allows students to complete their course in whichever method meets their needs. These modes are as follows:

- Full time (day classes): This study option involves attending classes where an ACCCO Trainer leads students through the course or unit. ACCCO has training rooms in Fortitude Valley, Brisbane with classes 2 days per week + 1 day practicum per week for 45 weeks. Students wanting to complete some units only through classroom study should consult our webpage to find out when the class is scheduled.
- External: In this mode, students study their course at home at a time convenient to them. Students receive a booklet with all the required learning, activities and assessment. All external students have an ACCCO Trainer who is in regular contact with them and are available by phone and/or email for questions and support.
- Recognition: This option recognises student's prior experience and learning. Students work through a booklet which allows them to demonstrate their knowledge and skills without completing additional learning. Students are assessed on these skills and knowledge through the Recognition process.
- Credit: Students have previously achieved competency in a unit assessed as equivalent to the unit of study required by this course.
